THE SOCIAL WORLD

Mrs. Townsend's Dinner Dance Last

RECENT HAPPENINGS AND GOSSIP

Hospitalities About Many Leading Boards.

If the gayeties of the last half of the month approach in number or attractions winter is assured. The White House has had all the stately happenings lately and will continue to monopolize one night each week throughout this month in the three card receptions yet to follow. Outside of these events the charity ball next Monday night at Willard's Hotel affords the first great opportunity for the fashionable world to come together and enjoy itself in the old-fashioned way. The two large ball rooms will be at the service of the guests, one for dancing and the other for promenading, and it is hoped that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the cabinet may be able to attend.

Tonight President and Mrs. Roosevelt will dine with the Secretary of War and Mrs. Root. Other events of the afternoon and evening are Mrs. Swanson's card party for Mrs. Mayhoff, the debut tea of Miss Bright, daughter of Dr. George Bright, U. S. N., at the Washington Club, and dinners at Justice Harlan's and Senator Fairbanks' homes. Leading events on the Fairbanks' homes. Leading events on the cards for Monday are the farewell dinner at the Arlington by the retiring Postmaster General and Mrs. Smith in honor of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the charity ball at the New Willard. For Tuesday evening is the judicial reception at the White House. Dinners will be given by Senator and Mrs. Elkins and at the Japanese legation. Miss Paulding will give an afternoon reception in honor of her uncle, Senator Depew, and his bride. Other events of the week include the leapyear dance at the New Willard Thursday and a small and early at Rauscher's Friand a small and early at Rauscher's Friday, Mrs. Robert I. Fleming's 5 o'clock tea Wednesday, Mrs. Nash's tea the same date and a large number of dinners at prominent homes. The Supreme Court din-ner will be given at the White House

Mrs. Roosevelt received several hundred callers by invitation yesterday afternoon and had the assistance of the Misses Root, Knox and Hitchcock. Many recent White House guests and strangers in Washington paid their respects.

The Argentine minister and Mrs. Garcia

Merou gave a dinner last night, when their guests were the Mexican ambassador and Mrs. Azpiroz, Captain and Mrs. Vignal, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Cortez, Miss Cortez. Senora Herrara and Lieutenant Commander Gut-tero and Mr. Barrett, who has been re-cently a delegate to the Pan-American congress at Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend's beautiful home was the scene of one of the largest dinner dances of the winter last night, given in honor of their guest, Miss Strong of Erie, honor of their guest, Miss Strong of Erie, Pa., and to meet whom a company made up of the most notable of the pleasure seekers at the capital assembled. The hostess, to whom society is already under so many obligations, added another splendid entertainment to the rest, and surely one that will be hard to eclipse. The 150 guests at dinner were seated at small tables, arranged in the dining room and hall, each table adorned with specimen roses, scattered over the cloth as well as filling a center basket.

The hostess wore white and Miss Strong was in white satin and tulle, garlanded with lilies of the valley. Miss Townsend was also in white. After dinner a cotillion was danced, led by Major McCauley and Miss Strong. For the favors very pretty articles were provided, corsage bouquets forming one in the list.

Several hundred guests foined the dinner company to take part in the dance. Nearly all the ambassadors and other members of all the ambassadors and other members of the diplonatic corps and Miss Roosevelt were among the guests. Others present included the Austrian minister and Mrs. Hengelmuller, the Misses Pauncefote, the Countess Cassini, Mr. and Mrs. von Cal-lenberg, Senor Riano, the Danish minister, Mr. and Mrs. de Margerie, Mr. and Mrs. Crackenthorpe Count von Montgelas, Mr. Crackenthorpe, Count von Montgelas, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Howland, Count von Arnim, Gen. and Mrs. Corbin, Capt. Gilmore, Miss Sheridan, the Netherlands minister, Miss Sheridan, the Netherlands minister, the Misses Leiter, Count Quadt, Mr. Bonaparte, Miss de Peyster, Miss Cockrell, Mr. Carlgnani, Miss Root, Mr. James Wadsworth, jr., Miss Paulding, Mr. Rogestvensky, Mr. Wauters, Mr. Humphrey Owens, Mrs. Slater, M. Hermite, Mr. Raikes, Miss Ruth Hanna, Senor Azpiroz, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Mr. Wyndham, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Anderson, Count de la Gharar-Mrs. Lars Anderson, Count de la Gharar-desca, Senor Del Viso, the Misses Warder, Capt. Crozler, Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, Miss Boardman, Mr. de Bildt, Mr. and Mrs.

Another charming debutante was added to the winter's list yesterday in the person of Miss Martha Ryan, second daughter of Mrs. William K. Ryan. Mrs. W. K. Ryan, sr., Mrs. Rebecca Ryan and Mrs. Frances Nash assisted at the pretty tea marking the occasion. One of the problems discussed Wednesday afternoon while callers made the rather lonesome rounds of the cabinet houses was whether it really was the cup of tea and accompaniments that made the Wednesday calls a pleasant duty some years ago and one not to be omitted even while a blizzard raged. Some take the view that the increased amount of entertaining and the ex-tensive area which must now be covered by who would keep up a large visiting acquaintance have as much to do with the situation at present as any other cause. In fact, the cabinet receptions as weekly events where real society folks met their own set and gave those who had read more than they had seen of the gay world a chance to come within speaking distance are no longer necessity as they once were.

All the opportunities these drawing rooms then offered are in abundant evidence in dozens of other directions. Like the fall of the cities of old, because of the luxury and ease and comfort of their inhabitants, the decadence of a once cherished institution may be charged not to an individual, but to may be charged not to an individual, but to all the successors of the old-fashioned host-esses who regarded a jammed house as the best possible tribute to their personal pop-ularity first of all and to the hospitable spirit of the administration which their spirit of the administration which their husbands served. One remembers the old days when the man opening the door was rarely seen after 3:15 o clock. He was simply swallowed up in the throng coming and going, and late guests considered themselves quite recomprised if they got a welcoming smile from their hostess over the heads of a dozen others. No charge of economy is possible in the matter, since there never was a cabinet more luxuriously housed than at present, nor any where servhoused than at present, nor any where serv-ants and attendants were more numerous. It is not uncommon now to pass from two to five men servants before the mistress of the household is reached. The explanation lies entirely in the change of fashion and lies entirely in the change of fashion and custom, and because crowding and jostling were the order of the past it does not follow but that the lessened attendance of the present has many advantages. The cabinet women are not supposed to return calls, but, of course, they do, and certainly within the entertaining seit's can be found accomplishing this social duty with much of the industry that marked their predecessors. But the impression that gained ground that calls would not be returned except by card, along with the abolishment of the tea table and its chances for redeeming many awkward situations in the meeting of strangers, have both had much to do with the waning glory of cabinet day. The query is now, will it be revived in the near future or will something new replace it?

POLICEMAN'S BRAVE DEED.

Rescues Two Children From a Burn-Policeman Henry C. Stroman of the tenth precinct rescued two Small colored children from a burning house at 214 G street northwest this morning and received the plaudits of the spectators. One child was eighteen months and the other was two and one-half years old. Their mother, Mary Gross, had gone out to work, leaving them locked in her room on the second floor.

The lower floor of the house, where the fire occurred, is occupied by Martha Bryant, also colored. Her child, Robert Bryant, who is four years old, pulled a lamp from a bureau and caused the blaze while his mother was at a neighboring stere purchasing coal. The blaze did not disturb him very much, for he was enjoying a piece of bread and molasses when he was found by those attracted to the fire.

Quite a crowd had gathered in front of the house before the arrival of the fire department, but no one of the party was apparently willing to risk going through the smoke-filled house to rescue the child. Policeman Stroman, who was a passenger on street car which passed the house, umped from the moving vehicle. Upon being informed that there were children on the upper floor he broke open the door and found the room filled with smoke. The younger of the two children was found ly-ing under the crib, while the older one was stretched upon the floor. Grabbing the little ones, he hurried down stairs with one under each arm.

Friends took charge of the children, who had been rescued before the smoke had seriously affected them. An alarm was turned in from box 14 and the firemen extinguished the figure before the smoke had seriously affected them. tinguished the flames before much damage

Forgotten thou shalt never be.
